Subject: 'Submission on A1193 Irradiation of all fresh fruit and vegetables'

Categories: Late comment

As a private 75 year old individual concerned about my current health and my ability to continue to keep my health, I totally reject any drive to irradiate fresh fruit and vegetables. The more that mankind interferes with "Mother Nature's" processes, the worse that public health becomes. All of the major killers of the population (cancer, heart disease etc) have flourished more and more over time by man's interference with food, resulting in less opportunity for people to ingest "living" and nutritionally dense food rather than "dead" foods as a result of processing to enhance shelf life. What possible valid reason could you have for irradiating food products that have served to nourish people and animals since the beginning of time other than to create an income stream for some industry.

Leave our food alone and let us live long and healthy lives without your interference.
