Submission Text:	It is essential that all forms of genetic modification including CRISPR and ZFN are subject to regulatory control and are thoroughly tested for safety and unwanted effects before being approved for use. In the case of GM food material including ingredients, labelling of the GM content should be mandatory, to give consumers the choice of purchasing or not. There are various justifiable reasons for people to avoid GM food: many are unconvinced of their safety and lack of long-term effects, others find GM techniques abhorrent in principle.
