Categories: Blue Category

I wish to make a submission in favour of supporting HEMP as a food. This has been proven many times over to support people in their fight for cancer, amongst other things. It's crazy that it's not available in this country, when it has been successfully used for hundreds of years without any incidence that even comes close to what the GMO foods are now responsible for. You keep releasing so much toxic waste into our food system, yet you continually stop good foods from being approved such as raw milk and most likely hemp too.

I don't know why I even bother making submissions as you have already made up your mind, and as is always pointed out time and time again, have NEVER rejected a single GMO application! I really don't see the point of this department at all. It just seems to be a division of corporate giants to interface with the government and be allowed to conduct all sorts of science experiments on the people of Australia. All in the name of greed.
