To whom it may concern,

I'm hydroponic eggplant grower in Queensland, with the loss of Fenthion, as a crop protective for fruit fly, we have lost access to the southern state.

I writing in support of irradiation technology across all commodities, as most oversea countries have already a blanket commodities access to the technology. With the cost and time frame of during trails across all commodities, it cannot be justified, as a number of commodities have already pass the testing in Australia and New Zealand.

We have sent a trial of eggplant to Steritech Pty. Ltd. with no visual affect with the irradiation treatment.
