Subject: re: legalising the sale of raw milk

Australia is a country known for its democracy, and the free choice of citizens in relation to their purchases and consumption of foods, alcohol and cigarettes.

Raw milk has been consumed by thousands of Europeans for unknown hundreds of year, with no serious consequences to their health. Serious health issues are known from the effects of cigarettes. alcohol, and fast food consumption, yet these are all legal products.

We, as Australian citizens, should be given the choice of whether we purchase and consume raw milk, or not.
